DRAFT

The Ministry of Human Resource and Development aims to enhance the human capital of India especially the enhancement of the nation's youth.

Social development ensures a healthy human capital which is as equally important as education. It is critical that the next generation grow up with a culture of health and fitness as research has shown that a healthy population is far more productive and beneficial to society. Sport plays an important role in inculcating this mind-set. To embed this philosophy, it is imperative that the youth are encouraged to play sport and lead a consciously healthy lifestyle from an early age.

In this endeavour, the Indian Air force and the Subroto Mukherjee Sports Education Society have been promoting Asia's largest interschool football tournament - The Subroto Cup for the last 56 years. Football today is the world's most popular sport and the second most played sport in India. Whilst its physical demands require players to maintain a healthy standard of fitness, it also instils teamwork and discipline in the players.

The Subroto Cup is played by over 32,000 schools across the country in three distinct categories; Under 14 Boys, Under 17 Girls and Under 17 Boys. The winners from each state are then hosted in Delhi for 45 days where the finals are held. The tournament also hosts international teams and academy teams from India to expose the players to a high quality of football.

The Subroto Cup creates a platform for budding footballers to showcase their skills and add to the talent pool of the country. 25 players from each category are provided support in the form of scholarships that assist them in their development as players. The Subroto Cup, in its entirety, is a platform that allows for a seamless transition from junior level football to senior level professional football. The alumni of the cup include some of India's most prolific players such as Baichung Bhutia.

Most of the state education departments are extending all possible support for the Subroto Cup tournaments at their respective states. I would like to indicate the prominence of this tournament and every state education departments should encourage the schools at their respective states, districts, divisions and sub-divisions to take part in this annual event as a mandate. Every state must coordinate and conduct a Subroto Cup tournament and the champion teams be selected by the month of July every year and confirm participation of their state, to Subroto Mukerjee Sports Education Society under intimation to this office.
